AYER'S

CHERRY PECTORAL

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

THIS [illegible] the unprecedented success of the Cherry Pectoral, in the cure of Coughs, Colds, and Consumption, has induced many [illegible] to offer to the public remedies which they represent to be equally as good as this. Parents and guardians, do not be deceived by them. Ask for Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and take no other. Public confidence in this remedy is the result of many years of trial, and of cures which have astonished the world. No other medicine can show so many testimonials of its virtues, or so many living witnesses to its power to cure the most dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs.

DR. PERKINS, the venerable President of the Connecticut Medical Institute, writes, "I have employed your Cherry Pectoral in my own practice, and in my family, for many years, and have no hesitation in saying it is the best medicine for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, and Throat and Lung diseases, that has ever come under my observation. I have seen the most astonishing cures performed by it, and many apparently hopeless cases of Consumption have been completely cured by it."

REV. DANIEL M. CRAIG, a distinguished Methodist clergyman of Georgia, writes to the Proprietor of this city, "I have been cured of a severe and dangerous affection of the throat, by Cherry Pectoral. I was supposed by my friends to be in the last stages of Consumption, and was not expected to live. Having heard of the wonderful cures performed by your Pectoral, I was induced to try it, and am now restored to perfect health. I consider it my duty to make this statement, that others may be benefited."

From the well known Druggist at Lowell, Mass.

DR. AYER: Sir, Oh! on receipt of your Cherry Pectoral, I called back the messenger and sent him away with a bottle. My wife was then in the last stages of Consumption, and had been given up by the Physicians. She had taken cold, and could get no relief. Your Pectoral was highly recommended to me, and I procured it. She had not taken it three weeks, and was entirely restored to health. Four weeks from the day she commenced taking your medicine, she was at work in the factory. Since then she has enjoyed good health. Yours, with gratitude, JOHN [illegible]

And the Plff avers that the said sixty days have long since elapsed—Yet, though often requested, and Defts have not paid said sum, nor any part thereof, but neglect and refuse so to do, to the damage of the said Plff (as he says) in the sum of Seventy-five dollars, which shall then and there be made to appear with other due damages. AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

WITH THE U. S. PATENT OFFICE,

WASHINGTON.

No. 22 State Street, . . Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed by the Commissioner of Patents Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th Sec of Act of '37

Having relinquished the Agency for the transaction of Patents and adopted a more extensive one of sending them to the Patent Office where by a Patent may be procured also it may needs earlier to contribute to forward them free of expense—to prepare Caveats Specifications Assignments and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured Europe and other countries.

By application at this office Inventors are saved the time and expense of a journey to Washington and delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. They also have the advantage of personally explaining their inventions and of consulting in person, or by letter to them, matters, in general, of importance may arise in order to obtain correct specifications and claims. The experience of fifteen year's practice, an extensive collection of rare works decisions &c on mechanical subjects, the Patent Laws, and patents of different countries, collected at much expense during the long time this office has been established, together with accounts here kept of inventions patented at Washington, enable the subscriber to afford to inventors the advantage of procuring Patents, assistance and information which in other respects might be difficult of attainment.

R. H. EDDY, Solicitor of Patents.

WASHINGTON, JULY 21, 1849.—During the time I occupied the Office of Commissioner of Patents R. H. EDDY, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office as Solicitor for procuring Patents. There were few, if any, persons acting in that capacity who had so much business before the Patent Office, and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity and success. I regard Mr Eddy as one of the best informed and most able Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

Whig and Courier.

John S. Sayward, Editor.

FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1851.

☞ The Jeffersonian, half meekly, refers to the hot shot of the Democrat in denouncing its democracy as a mere pretence, and turns aside from the charge by begging for peace, and imploring harmony in the party, and talks very feelingly about the welfare of the party. This course of the Jeffersonian reminds us of a story in which it was represented that a pretended Quaker was in the habit of making quite too free with a female in his house. His wife had been suspicious for some time, when an opportunity occurred in which she might verify or dismiss her suspicions, and slipping off her shoes she silently glided to the room where she witnessed the guilt of her husband. But he turned upon her with the rueful caution, 'Sally Ann, Sally Ann, if thee conducts in this unbecoming manner and goes suspiciously creeping about the house in thy stocking feet thee will disturb the peace and harmony of this family."

☞ Our neighbor and friend N. C. Woodard, Esq., who has for several years been the Bangor agent for Sanford's Steamboats and in which capacity he has become generally and favorably known to the public, has resigned his station to Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Woodard is to take charge of the Railroad Hotel at the White Mountains in Gorham, N. H., in association with Mrs. Hayes, formerly of the Bangor House. The Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad is to be opened to this house on the first of July when everything will be in readiness to receive the large number of visitors who will, by means of railroad conveyance, visit this summer resort. The Woodard family as easily run to tavern keeping as ducks to float on water. Abraham, one of the brothers, presides with great skill at the Penobscot Exchange, in this city. Moses, another brother is widely renowned as the landlord for a number of years of the Bangor House, and now conducts, with great satisfaction to the public, the United States Hotel in Portland. Nathan C. is doubtless destined to acquire equal fame with his other brothers in the superintendance of the great hotel at the White Mountains. He will certainly do so if gentlemanly deportment, agreeable attentions and thorough devotion to the wants of his visitors can insure it.

Mrs. Hayes has already acquired a reputation for conducting the mysteries of the interior of a large and fashionable hotel, and in her new station will confirm and vindicate the correctness of the public judgment regarding her many excellencies. We do not like to lose these good people from our city but as they go to stations of greater public importance, and perhaps of wider usefulness, and we trust greater profit, we certainly wish them abounding success.

☞ Our readers who wish to procure fine plants for their dwellings, or beautiful roses and florel ornaments for their gardens, are referred to the advertisement in another column of Mr. Brockmuller, of the Palm Street Green House. His collection of Roses and Verbenas is very extensive and very beautiful. There can be nothing richer than this large, hardy, perpetual blooming, and thrifty Lorain Rose. The Queen of the Prairie with all its properties as to climber and its abundant and beautiful flowers is not a perpetual bloomer and has not the fine fragrance of the Lorain.

☞ A pamphlet on the subject of Flax, its national importance and advantages, with directions for the preparation of Flax Cotton, and the cultivation of Flax, by the Chevalier Claussen, has just been published in this country. This pamphlet contains much information on the subject of Flax, its cultivation and preparation after the new process.

☞ Mr. Webster is to be invited to go to Salem, Mass., on an early day to address his thousands of friends in Essex County, and to receive their congratulations upon the improved prospect before the Union, and upon the share that he has had in the attainment of this happy result, and to confer together in relation to the future.

☞ We have received from Messrs. E. F. Duren & Co. the 20th number of the Dictionary of Mechanics, Engine-Work and Engineering, now in course of publication by Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., New York. It is a work of great merit.

☞ Messrs. E. F. Duren & Co., have received the April number of Appleton's Mechanics' Magazine and Engineers' Journal, devoted to natural, experimental and mechanical philosophy, the arts and sciences, published monthly by D. Appleton & Co., New York, at $3 per annum.

☞ A Parsnip measuring three feet and one inch in length and not quite as in circumference has been left at this office. This vegetable was raised in the garden of George Stetson, Esq., of this city and we challenge any one to beat it.

☞ Mrs Whittlesey's Magazine for Mothers and Daughters for April has been received and copies may be found at Duren & Co's Bookstore.

☞ In connection with the mysterious appearance of a steamer in the Chesapeake Bay, it is rumored that some three hundred men have embarked at Baltimore, to join the Cuban expedition.

☞ Tammany society of New York city have recently chosen officers of the moderate political stamp, who go for healing party grievances in the party.

☞ The monthly reading from the Box of the Mechanics' Association takes place this evening.

☞ Hon. Hannibal Hamlin will please accept our thanks for recent favors in the shape of public documents.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:

NAVY BAY, Caland of Manzanilla,) Isthmus of Darien, Republic of New Granada, April 7th, 1851.

Well, Mr. Whig and Courier, I hardly know whether to address you, or your old Arm Chair, from this land of nature in her primitive undress;—but relying on your courtesy and good nature, I will be personal and address you, personally; trusting that you will not take it as officiously so. Nor do I know whether this letter may prove acceptable,—for you know I write it unmitred; but knowing that you can light your fire with it—I do not say pipe or cigar, for I believe you do not smoke,—if it should not be considered worthy of a place in your columns, I will venture to perpetrate a few lines for you. So here goes.

And first, I suppose, will come up the great question with most of your readers, as it seems to come with the rest of the world—Is the climate on the Isthmus unhealthy? And the unqualified answer to the must be in the affirmative. Yet the variety of diseases prevalent here, is not great—neither is the malignancy nor the fatality of those which do prevail.—The almost only diseases here, are intermittent and remittent fevers, frequently complicated with bilious affections, and sometimes followed by bowel complaints. And there are probably parts of some of our Western States,—the Wabash district in Illinois, for example, which are quite as sickly as any part of this country, and where the sickness is quite as severe and as fatal as it is here. But, in a tropical region, diseases run their course more speedily than in cooler climates; and hence it is more important that medical aid should be promptly rendered, than in temperate or cold countries. Another, and more important consideration to be taken into account, is the impossibility of obtaining—not merely medical assistance,—but the most common comforts and conveniences of the most humble hovel to be found in the United States. And this arises not only from the difference in language, and manners and customs,—the greater rudeness and simplicity of the inhabitants,—but from the actual paucity of inhabitants. Those most competent to know respecting this matter, say, that the aggregate of the whole population,—men, women, and children,—along the seventy or eighty miles of the route as now traveled from Chagres to Panama, does not exceed from three to four thousand.—And by the "route" is to be understood, not merely the residents within sight of the river, or the mule-paths, but those residing along the route upon a belt on each side of it, as wide, perhaps, as Capt. Whitney asks for along the route of his proposed Mississippi and Pacific Railroad. There are no roads whatever in this part of the country;—no mills for grinding grain;—no saw mills;—no mechanic nor mechanic establishments,—not even a blacksmith's shop;—nothing of the kind more than is to be found among the Sioux and Foxes.

You must, therefore regard the whole of this region of country as being almost as wild and uncultivated as when the Spaniard first trod its shores, three centuries and a half ago.

A large portion of the people in the United States probably have no clear and correct notions of the people who constitute the mass of the population of New Granada, and, in fact, of all the Hispano-American Republics of South America. Under the Spanish domination, it is well known that a large portion of the Aboriginal population of their countries, was converted—nominally, at least,—to Christianity,—of course, in the form of Catholicism. However little spiritual elevation or intellectual culture it may have conferred upon them, as compared with Protestantism, it was a great good to them. It recognized them as human beings,—rational and immortal,—as brothers of their more highly favored fellow beings,—and as heirs of the same hope. It thus threw its protection around them. And the rural peasantry,—the cultivators of the soil,—the herdsmen,—and the few rude mechanics,—were made up of these converted Indians and their descendants. The Spanish language is in universal, perhaps almost exclusive use, among them. Here and there an European Spaniard, or his descendent of pure blood, lived upon his estate, with his Indian peasantry, who performed his labor, around him. Now was the condition of this peasantry a hard one. And they were temperate and frugal;—their habits were simple, and their wants were few,—and easily supplied in a country where shelter and clothing of the rudest and least expensive kind, were adequate to all the wants of the inhabitants. But most of the Spanish population, and their descendents, were residents of the large towns and cities. In some parts of this country there were negro slaves; but their condition was mostly that of house servants.

And it is well known with what jealous care Spain closed her colonial ports and possessions against the entrance of all foreigners, whether as settlers or as temporary residents,—and against all trade with them. And it was a part of her policy to prevent and discourage all manufactures and even the exercise of the common mechanic arts,—thus making her colonies wholly dependent on the mother country for all their supplies, except those which were the immediate product of the soil of the colonies themselves.

During the revolutionary disturbances, extending through many years, and which finally resulted in the independence of those Colonies, many of the old Spaniards returned, with their families, to Spain;—some perished in the conflict;—and some went into exile. The old Spanish population together with their descendants of pure blood were scattered abroad; and, throughout this country, at least,—and probably through all the Hispano-American countries,—the few old Spaniards, with their descendants of pure blood, who remained in this country, mostly resorted to the cities and large towns as their places of residence.

But even in these large towns and cities, only a relatively small portion of the population consists of Europeans and their descendants, of unmixed blood. The proportion of Africans, and their descendants, is much greater, as compared with the Indian population, in the cities and large towns, than in the country. And in the cities, a great mixture of races is met with;—Indians with Negroes,—Negroes and Indians with whites; and from these hybrids, yet others, their descendants, forming an inextricable confusion of races. But of pure white Europeans, and their descendants, but a relatively small part of the population of the cities and large towns is constituted, and almost no part of the population of the country.

And such is the population of this section of New Granada,—and, as I am informed on the best of authority,—of the whole of this Republic. And this is also true of the other Hispano-American States, as I have been credibly informed. In this section of New Granada, there has been a considerable influx of negroes from the British West India Islands, since emancipation took place there. The character of the uncorrupted, pure descendants of the aborigines residing in the country, is said, by all who have had opportunity of knowing, to be good. They are eminently honest, faithful, trustworthy, and kind,—docile, and pretty industrious, though wholly destitute of the restless activity and energy which are so characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race. But where they have been mingled with the Negro race, or where they have been brought into close contact with the Europeans and North Americans transiently resident in this country, they have too often acquired the vices of both, without adopting the virtues of either. And, therefore, they are often found to be crafty, deceitful, and sometimes bold, lawless, and in fact robbers and murderers.

The Island Manzanilla takes its name from Manzana, the Spanish word for apple, and is a diminutive of it, as if we should say in English, applet, appling or applekin,—meaning thereby, little apple. The name, I have been told, has been given it in reference to the form and diminutive size of the Island, which is only one mile in breath, and but a small fraction over that in length.

It lies near the eastern margin of the mouth of Navy Bay, (formerly called Limon Bay,) and has a harbor on its western side, called Manzanilla Harbor, on the northern side of which the principal station and settlement of the Panama Railroad Company is located. Here the Railroad begins. Its length to Panama will not exceed forty six miles, though, by the route now traveled from Chagres, by the rivers and mule-paths, the distance is between seventy and eighty. The place, (Navy Bay, the name by which this station of the Company is usually known,) is ten miles east of Chagres, by water, and a little less by crossing over a point of land. Navy Bay, (that is, the Bay itself,) looks towards the north, to the Caribbean Sea, and runs up southwardly, four or five miles into the main land.—From this settlement to Gatan, (by the Railroad,) the place where the Railroad first strikes the Chagres river, the distance is seven and a half (7½) miles; while from Chagres, (by the river,) the distance is nine miles. And the harbor at Navy Bay is every way more convenient than that at Chagres, which is inaccessible to vessels drawing more than ten or twelve feet of water; larger vessels being obliged to come to anchor in an open road-stead, at a distance of more than a mile from the shore.—And as the Railroad will be completed and in running order to Gatan, in the course of next June, (several miles of the rails being already laid down,) Navy Bay must then become the great port on the Atlantic side, where all passengers and freight destined for the western side of this American Continent must be landed in order to cross the Isthmus. And this will reduce Chagres to an unimportant village.

About twenty miles to the east of this place, is the town of Porto Bello,—(more correctly, and as written by the Spanish, Puerto Bello,)—a place formerly, when Spain was in her glory, of great importance, and the grand depot for this side of the Isthmus for the treasures of the precious metals which were brought across the Isthmus from the western side of this Continent. It has been stated, that the ingots and bars of the precious metals stored in Porto Bello at once, was sufficient to have completely paved the streets of that then active and flourishing,—but now decayed and almost deserted town. And at that time, it is said, that this little Island of Manzanilla was the resort of buccaneers,—of pirates and robbers, who used to watch and waylay and rob the specie and bullion trains crossing the Isthmus, and the Spanish merchant vessels as they returned to Spain richly laden with treasure. But these things were in the good old times;—and they have all passed away.

Porto Bello is surrounded by an amphitheatre of very high mountains which make an imposing appearance at a distance; but it is said, they shut out the land-breeze almost entirely from the town. As regards unhealthiness, Porto Bello bears, deservedly, and ever has borne, as bad a reputation as any spot in this proverbially unhealthy country.

But I must stop here, Mr. Whig and Courier, lest you and your readers should become as soundly asleep (if, indeed, you are not so already,) as your Old Arm Chair.

Steamboat Explosion.

Oswego, April 21.

At three o'clock, as the British steamer Comet, with a full head of steam on, was preparing to leave the port, her boiler exploded, completely tearing out the centre of the boat, throwing her smoke pipe overboard, and injuring her so severely that she sunk in five minutes. Her second engineer, carpenter and one deck hand are missing, supposed to be drowned.—The first engineer and four of the deck hands are badly scalded, but only one of them is thought to be in a dangerous condition.

The Captain was on deck at the time, and was thrown below; but was only slightly injured. The boat now lies a perfect wreck in about nine feet of water.

DATH. The body of one of the deck hands has just been taken from the hold, but has not yet been recognized.

The steamship Africa sailed to-day at 12 M. with 176 passengers. She was so full that officers gave up their berths. She took out $568,338 in specie.

Ireland.

In The Irish Confederates, a work recently published by Harper & Brothers, written by Henry M. Field, we find a hopeful view of the condition of Ireland at the present time, which will be read with much interest by every true friend of that country. Mr. Field speaks of the resources of Ireland in warm terms, and its wealth has begun to be appreciated. The mind of the nation, too, is awaking, and the Irish are also slowly experiencing political justice. The emancipation of the Catholics was a step towards reform. To render complete justice to both Catholics and Dissenters, the present established Church of Ireland should be abolished. It is an abuse which ought not to stand. It is a hopeful sign for Ireland that old parties are being broken up and that the Orange association, after having caused discord and misery enough is dead.—Mr. Field says:

"On the other hand, little is to be expected for the permanent good of Ireland from violent agitation for the Repeal. The day, for this, too, has gone by. Guilty as the Union was at first, it does not follow that its repeal is to be thought of as a remedy for the present distresses of the country. The Union was consummated by bribing a legislature, but the parties are now married to each other for better, for worse, and they must make the best of it. The evils of Ireland will be mitigated much more by drawing still closer the bonds of union than by perpetually suing for a divorce. In the late famine, England made the most noble exertions for her relief, and it is time to forget old causes of, bitterness, and to live in harmony.—Lord John Russell proposes to abolish the vice-regal court. This should draw closer the bonds of the union.

Why should Ireland be regarded as a separate kingdom any more than Scotland? Besides, the Lord Lieutenant has generally fallen into the hands of the Orange faction and helped to maintain an odious party ascendancy, which must always irritate the feelings of the native Irish.

Now that railroads traverse every part of the United Kingdom, and that steamboats cross the channel in three hours, Ireland is not so far off as Wales was a century ago. Dublin is as near to London as Edinburgh.

It is time then to give up useless agitation, and turn the people to practicable reforms.—No more monster meetings! Let the strong arms of the peasantry cultivate the land. The bill for the relief of encumbered estates was a great step in the right direction. There is land enough in Ireland to support her whole population, could it be in the hands of persons living on it, and be properly cultivated. But it has been divided into immense tracks, owned generally by noblemen residing out of the country, who have drained off the whole income to be spent in London. Of course they have depreciated in value, and been encumbered with heavy mortgages. But by the law of entail could not be sold. The proprietor, who seldom visited his estate, had little inducement to make improvements. His policy had been to get the full income from his land, and to expend nothing upon it. Thus Ireland has been reduced to the lowest point of poverty. Her people have been starving, while whole districts lay waste.

The effect of this bill is to break up this old feudalism, to sweep away those vast properties which have been an incumbus upon the prosperity of Ireland. Great estates are brought into market. They are divided into small farms and sold;—generally to the cultivators of the soil. Those are men who live on the land, and who will pour back into the bosom of the country the wealth which they draw from it.

One thing more is wanting, to encourage the laborer in his toil—a just Landlord and Tenant Law. The bane of Ireland is the abominable system of land letting. Every proprietor wishes to get the utmost from his estate; he employs an agent to grind the faces of the poor—a character proverbially as harsh and exacting as the overseer on a slave plantation. This petty tyrant does not scruple, to extort from the miserable peasant the highest rent, and at the same time to refuse him any allowance for his improvements, for the better cultivation of the land, or the buildings he may have put upon it. Of course he has no motive to labor beyond his bread. If he tills the soil so as to get a large crop, and raises the value of the land, the landlord will raise his rent. If he builds a good house for his family, he may be turned out of it at the end of the year, without a penny for his trouble. Thus the Irish peasant is a slave holder. The peasants are his slaves. They hold life but at his pleasure.—They are far more miserable than the slaves on our Southern plantations; for while they are equally dependent, they have not the claim on their master of being his property. If the landlord owned his serfs, he would take care of them for the same reason that he keeps his horses in good condition. But now he works them like slaves so long as it is for his interest and then turns them out by the roadside to starve.

These facts should be remembered by those who charge the Irish with being an idle and shiftless people. They have no motive to work. The Irish laborer has not had a fair chance. Give him his rights, and then see if his arm is not as strong, and his will as hearty as that of the free and independent laborer of our own country."

There is but little to attract the eye of the traveller as he passes Geo. Bliss's Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy.—Spurious medicines spring up like weeds in a garden, and like them, they prove injurious to whatever they come in contact with. No medicine probably ever had a greater number of counterfeits than Bliss's Candy; but this fact speaks volumes of its excellence as a remedy for coughs, colds, and consumption. If it were not a good article, and did not the public admit it, it would not be counterfeited—this is clear. But the purchaser must avoid the spurious article, and procure only Bliss's Candy, which is the original and only genuine article. Prepared only by B. K. BLISS, Druggist, Springfield, Mass. Price 25 cents a package. For sale in Bangor by LADD & INGRAHAM. dew. apr 10

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT HAVANA!!

Steamship Ohio arrived at New York this morning from New Orleans and Havana. Left Havana 19th inst. She brings 200 passengers, $600,000 in gold dust, and $20,000 in specie on freight.

The Falcon left Havana for New Orleans 18th, and Georgia on 19th for Chagres.

There was great excitement at Havana in respect to another invasion. So confidently was such an event anticipated, that for the week before the Ohio left the troops were ordered to sleep on their arms to be ready to march at a moment's warning.

A foolish report was in circulation at Havana, and generally believed, that the reason of the failure of the Ohio to arrive in season on her trip from New Orleans was that she had been detained to bring out an invading force. So great was the excitement on the arrival of the steamer that hundreds of people were waiting on the Mole, eager to get a sight of the expected invaders. They were apparently much disappointed when the steamer passed quietly to her moorings without the slightest demonstration.

CURE FOR LUNG COMPLAINTS.

DOWNS' ELIXIR

Is a most effectual remedy for Lung and Throat Complaints. It cures Colds Coughs Whooping Cough Croup Asthma Bronchitis and the Lungs Bronchial Affections Canker in the Mouth and Throat and Liver Complaints. It has cured many cases of what was believed to be confirmed Consumption.

It is highly concentrated and sold in 2 oz and 4 oz bottles at 50 cents & $1 per bottle.

Large numbers of certificates of its good effects have been published and we defy contradiction to produce one case that it will not benefit. We only ask a trial and will refer to those who have used it for their opinion. Not only do we say it will cure but we will refer to those who have cured themselves. Let the afflicted read the following letter from Callonia—

MONTEREY Jan 15 1850

Messrs A B & D Sands Gentlemen—I feel bound to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable medicine Downs Elixir and I do not hesitate to say that it has been a perfect cure in my family. My daughter was severely afflicted with a cough about the first of October last. A few days after I was taken with a very severe cough and an eruption of the skin which my physician could not cure. I happened to find your Sarsaparilla in a store in this place and remembering the good quality of the medicine at home, I purchased three bottles which had the desired effect of removing my difficulty entirely.

With high regards yours &c

J H MILLER M D A

FROM THE STATE OF MAINE

The attention of the readers is called to the following certificate of some valuable medicine called by using as only five bottles of it have done more than a dozen of most any other kind of medicine. Among the certificates is one from Mr Sidney Chapman of Gardiner, who has been afflicted with a severe cough for many years, and who could not get relief from any medicine until he tried Downs Elixir, which has entirely cured him. Another is from Mr Wyatt & Hatch—Gentlemen—I have been troubled with a severe cough for many years, and have tried many medicines without effect, until I was induced to try Downs Elixir, which has entirely cured me. I have also given it to my children with the most happy effect. I cheerfully recommend it to all who are afflicted with coughs, colds, or any pulmonary complaint. Yours with respect
